

What if the new science teacher was really a vampire and you were the only one who knew?

What if you caught a talking fish?

What if your dog became human and was your cricket coach for the day?

What if you had a magic pair of football boots that made you the best player in the world?

What if your parents were really aliens?

What if you really were allergic to homework?

